Staff liaison and coordinators are vital to supporting collaboration between services and patients.

Services must hire the right people who understand the importance of partnership working and support them to be able to do this.

Universities are also including families and patients in the design and delivery of healthcare curriculums.

Patients and families must be meaningfully included and be a part of research. Funding can be dependent on patients involvement.

In Canada standards for patient and family-centered care is included in all policy and strategy as an accreditation.

Patient and Family Advisory Councils give a visual quality mark for services to show real involvement.

Working collaborative with patients to improve flow, emergency departments able to reduce use of psychotic drugs & improve discharge.

Risk stratification in chronic disease supports integration & ensures patient centered, coordinated care.

Risk stratification in chronic disease - integration, ensures patient centered, coordinated care.

The use of prediction modelling and risk stratification will assist clinical decision-making and improve outcomes.

Organisations can change to support patients, families and carers in coproduction.
